Working together

Established in 1838, James Jones and Sons Ltd is a fifth generation, family business and is facing Covid-19 with the same resolve as previous challenging world events, recessions and difficult times.

Key to our longevity is our long-standing relationships with our customers, suppliers and subcontractors, many of whom are also family businesses in their second, third or fourth generations. As key supply chain partners, your support has been invaluable in supporting the development and diversified growth of James Jones & Sons Ltd.

Whilst we recognize that our customers, like us, are facing an uncertain and extremely challenging period ahead, James Jones & Sons Ltd respectfully requests that all outstanding amounts are settled within the agreed payment terms so that the entire supply chain can be paid. With regard to our suppliers, we have an obligation to ensure all are paid on time and within their agreed, contracted terms so that they, in turn, can meet their own financial obligations. It is therefore in all our interests to protect the interdependent supply chain.

Our resolve during the current crisis remains undiminished and through close collaboration with our key suppliers and customers, we shall do everything we can to work alongside each other to ensure we all emerge as best we can.
